Choosing a wedding photographer

The most important thing in meeting with a wedding photographer is this:

Trust your instincts.

This person will follow you throughout one of the most important days of your life, the wedding. If you do not feel comfortable, it steals energy.

And you do not want that on this day.

This day you are in the center of attention. Everyone looks at you, all plans have been made down to perfection. The last thing you would want is a person you do not feel comfortable with.

A wedding photographer knows the routine, knows how to handle situations and knows how to make you feel relaxed about it.

When you feel "this person know what I want and knows how to do it" - do not hesitate. When you book that photographer, you know you can take your mind off of it.

Because that person, that photographer, wants the same as you do.

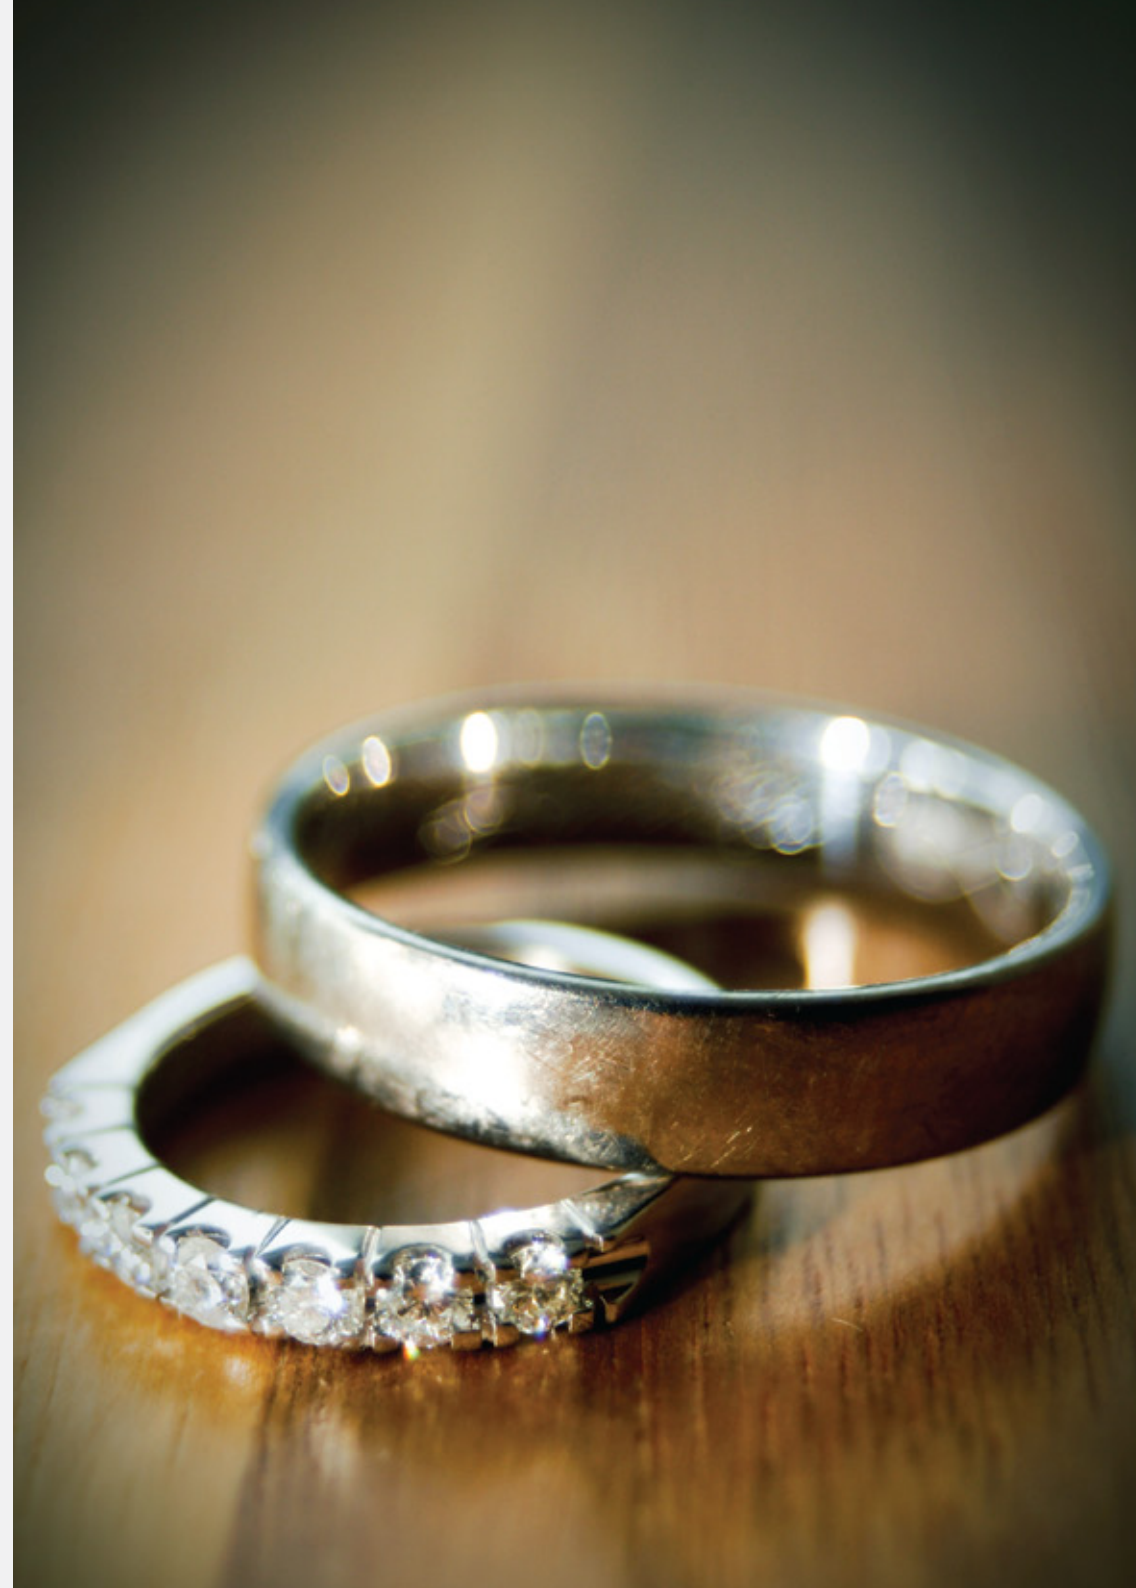

He wants to see the joy in people's faces, the tears in the bride's fathers' eyes, the first kiss, the very first look as newly weds holding hands, flowers, emotions, laughter, love.

I am that photographer.

Trust your instincts.

"Shared joy is
a double joy;
shared sorrow is half a sorrow"
